

Bars are the median across arms; each dot is one trained arm Everything to the left of the line is a modulator spending most of its output on a fixed per-channel rescaling — a learned constant — rather than on tracking the body.

where in the network the modulator acts

